

WAR MOTHERS CALL NATIONAL CONGRESS

Plan Merger With Other Organizations Working for the Same Objectives.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 19.—The national headquarters of the War Mothers of America announced today that women's war work organizations formed while the war was in progress have been asked to attend a meeting in Baltimore next autumn at which merger of the various bodies will be considered.

The one big organization, as proposed by officers of the War Mothers of America, would have as its chief objects the promotion of "patriotism and peace, and the brotherhood of man." There would be official publications through which the organization would conduct its campaigns.

Mrs. Robert Carlton Morris, Toledo, national president of the War Mothers of America, will make a nationwide speaking tour in behalf of the war mothers' organizations, expected in extending aid to men in military service and to their relatives at home, particularly where there was illness.

Mrs. James H. Storrow, Boston, is vice president of the War Mothers of America. Mrs. Boaz Crawford, Evansville, Ind., is secretary, and Mrs. Helen Clawson, Salt Lake City, treasurer.

The organizations which have been asked to participate in the merger convention include the Mothers' Club of the Service Flag, Detroit, Mich.; War Mothers Association, New York city; Mothers of the World Victory, southern states; Mothers of Democracy, Pittsburgh and San Francisco; Daughters of the Nation, New England states; Headquarters at Boston; Sammie's Mothers club, Iowa and Nebraska; and Next of Kin, Kansas and other states.

One of the names suggested for the new organization is "The League of the Service Star."

BOY SCOUTS HIKE TO RED FORK FOR OUTING

Troop 5 of the boy scouts hiked to Red Fork hill Friday night. The scouts left the city headquarters at 8:30 under the direction of scoutmaster Homer Hughes and C. E. Tubbs.

After having made camp the troop was given a cooking test and five of the boys passed. Following the test a meeting of the scouts was held around the camp fire and camp fire talks were made by Scout Executive John Lindly and scoutmasters Hughes and Tubbs, after which Lindly gave a demonstration on camp cooking.

The scouts broke camp at 9 o'clock and hiked back to the scout headquarters, dusty, tired and weary but smiling the smile of pleasure.

Father and Son Are Both Lieutenants

Lieutenant G. O. Van Meter, above and to the left of his son, Lieutenant G. E. Van Meter.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., April 19.—Lieut. G. O. Van Meter and Lieut. G. E. Van Meter, both of Mansfield, father and son, are the only instances of successful candidates for army commission from civil life who more such relationship. The father is a lawyer and the son a university professor. When war was declared, both decided to respond to the call to the colors. They entered the first training camp for officers at Fort Snelling and were both commissioned the same day. The father was assigned to the quartermaster's corps and was among the first of the American officers to reach France. The son followed later.

The father was a former resident of South Dakota, and became prominent in politics there, being state chairman of the progressive party there in 1912, holding that post four years. The son was a graduate of the University of Nebraska and athletic director and professor of mathematics of that institution. He is widely known as a college athlete. Father and son are six feet one inch in height. They came from fighting stock and each generation has participated in every war since the original Van Meter came to America from Holland with Peter Huyssent.

ARMENIANS WANT U. S. TO SERVE AS MANDATORY

LONDON, April 19.—"We ask America simply to assume a burden, to perform a service to humanity," says Professor Gilbert Murray, of Oxford university, in a statement adopted, stating that the United States accept a mandate of the league of nations to administer and protect Armenia.

"Armenia has been saved from the Turks and Kurds after suffering one of the most awful persecutions known to history," adds Professor Murray. "A remnant of the Armenians still alive can be reconstituted into a nation, but they will be too weak and disorganized to retain independence or internal order, unless they are helped and protected by some other nation."

The protecting nation must be very strong, absolutely disinterested, known and trusted by the Armenians, and not already overburdened by other duties elsewhere. There is no nation in the world except America which satisfies these four conditions. "If America will accept the mandate the Armenians can still be saved as a people. If America refuses, one more great section of the world is in danger of slipping into anarchy."

Everywhere throughout the United States he professed it will be "fair and warm" for peace time Easter.
